

A NEW HOME

// Located on the west end of the Mission Plaza, this new home for the San Luis Obispo Museum of Art expands its ability to exhibit more of the visual arts, teach more children and adults, and further enrich the cultural life of the region.

Now is the Time

HELP MAKE THIS NEW HOME A REALITY

The time has come to build the Museum of Art a new home. The present facility is inadequate for the Museum's growing collection and its visitors, who are increasing both in number and diversity. The existing structure lacks the space and functionality for which art museums are being used today.

The New Museum

The award-winning architectural firm of Barcelon Jang designed this landmark building—selected for their award-winning design of museums and other projects in historic California districts.

Visitors will enjoy selections from the permanent collection always on exhibition. Air conditioning and security improvements will qualify the Museum of Art to attract national touring exhibitions previously unavailable in this area.

Community Impacts

Art museums are not just homes for art, but also serve as vibrant, filled community spaces. Everyone gains from replacing the existing building on Mission Plaza with a new home for this Museum.

The new space will offer a more open, accessible, and engaging experience for all.
